Mershon Center for International Security Studies. Research Projects. Use of Force and Diplomacy. Passport: Newsletter of the Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations. 2006-07

Abstract:

Since 1969, the Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations Newsletter has provided a forum for the discussion of issues related to the practice of American diplomacy, while also presenting historians of U.S. foreign policy with a reliable source of professional information. In 2003, the newsletter was renamed Passport, and editorship passed to Peter Hahn and Mitch Lerner, with support from the Mershon Center. Passport's purpose is: To print essays on substantive issues related to the study of American diplomacy, particularly those focusing on newly opened archival materials. To host debates among scholars. To offer detailed information regarding new publications, scholarly competitions and awards, calls for papers and contributions, and other relevant resources.

At times U.S. foreign policymakers have had good reason to focus on Ireland. There was, of course, the massive wave of immigrants in the nineteenth century. They changed the face of American cities and filled the ranks of Union regiments in the U.S. Civil War. In the twentieth century, Ireland drew even more attention with the Easter Rising of 1916, when nationalists, tired of decades of British reluctance, Ireland drew even more attention with the Easter Rising of 1916, when nationalists, tired of decades of British reluctance Passport publication is also coordinated by Amy Sayward, the Executive Director of the Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations (SHAFR), through the SHAFR Business Office located at Middle Tennessee State University (MTSU). Passport publishes reviews, historiographical essays, articles on pedagogical issues relating to the teaching of U.S. foreign relations, and research notes, and it explores other issues of interest to SHAFR members. Volumes are produced in January, April and September and hosted by Middle Tennessee State University's institutional repository. Unsolicited su
