"I loathe us, I loathe our stupid puerile view of the World ... That WE have only to do it, that WE have only to go puff, and the monster buildings will go splat..."

The first professional London production in over 40 years of Magnificence, the seminal 1973 play by revered British dramatist Howard Brenton, runs at the Finborough Theatre for a strictly limited four week season from Tuesday, 25 October 2016 (Press Nights: Thursday, 27 October and Friday, 28 October 2016 at 7.30pm).

London, 1973. Poverty, homelessness, rising inequality, unemployment, industrial disputes. Five young activists squat a disused building and try to make a stand against it all.

Fired up by left-wing idealism but short on pragmatism, they discover that the revolution may be a long time coming, and when the protest leads to tragedy, some of them are driven to more violent methods. Meanwhile, on the banks of the Cam, a dying Tory grandee performs his last political act.

Both epic and intimate, Magnificence takes us from the grubby barracks of the revolutionary struggle, to the heart of centre-right Tory politicking, creating a panoramic vision of Britain at a pivotal moment in history. Many of its themes remain burning issues today – police brutality, drug abuse, shallow politicians, a social housing crisis, and whether violence can ever be justified for political ends. Magnificence showcases the humane, political voice which has made Howard Brenton such a remarkable force in British theatre.

"It's very exciting that a company of young people, who weren't born when I wrote it, are so passionate about reviving my 1973 play MAGNIFICENCE at the Finborough Theatre. When it was written there was an ugly debate on the left: was the 'direct action' of urban terrorist groups like the Baader Meinhof gang in Germany and the Red Brigades in Italy justified? I wrote the play to clear my head of this political psychodrama. It came out as a tragic-comedy, near to farce at times. But it could be called 'a tragedy of waste'. Maybe the young, angry, confused writer I was then hit on a truth: idealism can turn to hatred and destroy the best of us". – Howard Brenton Magnificence originally premiered at the Royal Court Theatre in June 1973, directed by Max Stafford-Clark, and with a cast including Pete Postlethwaite, Kenneth Cranham, Michael Kitchen and Robert Eddison.

The run will be accompanied by the FINBOROUGHFORUM, a series of informal post-show discussions and debates, on Wednesday evenings: 26 October, 2, 9 and 16 November. All events are free to ticketholders for that evening's performance of the play. FINBOROUGHFORUM events will all be Twitter friendly with live tweets from @FinboroughForum. Using the hashtag #finfor, the speakers will also answer questions posed on Twitter so everyone can be included, no matter where they are in the world. The events will feature a Q&A session with Howard Brenton, discussions with academics on the political parallels between the early 70s and today, and panel talks with present-day activists campaigning on similar themes.
