The Nightmare Club: Help! My Brother’s a Zombie

Haley Cook

Keywords
Dependable, Intermediate, Zombies, horror, brothers, family

Document Type
Book Review

Abstract
It’s the annual Halloween sleepover, which means it’s time to share the scariest story ever. Annie Graves hosts a yearly sleepover where her friends get together and try to scare each other. “Help! My Brother’s a Zombie” is the second story of the night, told by Jack. Jack’s brother Stephen was a great older brother, teaching him fun things like making slingshots and giving Indian burns. Then, as Stephen becomes a teenager, he begins to change, no longer the fun easy going older brother. He’s mean, stays up late, and smells funny. Eventually he is shipped off to a boarding school for his bad behavior—or so Jack is told. Jack notices that his parents have been staying up late, animals are missing, and there is a locked door in the attic. Eventually Jack discovers what is behind the locked door and helps his parents take care of the situation.

BYU ScholarsArchive Citation