Morton Allport Memorial Fund (1879)

The sum of £200 was raised by special subscription as a memorial to Morton Allport, a generous donor of collections to the Museum and a contributor of numerous papers, who also took an active interest in the introduction of salmon and other trout. The income accruing from the Memorial Fund is applied to the purchase of scientific books.

R. M. Johnston Memorial Fund (1920)

The sum of £230 was subscribed as a memorial to R. M. Johnston, Government Statistician, a member of the Society from 1883 till his death in 1918, and a Member of the Council and Vice-President for many years. During that time he contributed 103 papers, the subjects embracing statistics, geology, botany, zoology, and palaeontology. He will be remembered not only by students of social and economic science, but also by those interested in Tasmanian geology.

The Memorial Fund provides for (1) Lecture, (2) Medal to be presented to the lecturer, and (3) Purchase of books.

Medals presented—

1934. Professor W. J. Dakin, D.Sc., Professor of Zoology, University of Sydney.

minerals of tasmania. occur in the various Australasian colonies, may be of some interest, as illustrating in a forcible degree the mineral wealth of this island, notwithstanding its restricted area and the paucity of investigators in this special department of science. It will be found that in New South Wales about 185 species have been discovered (Liversidge, "Minerals of New South Wales," and "Report of the Second Meeting of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science, 1890"); South Australia about 100 ("Report of the Second Meeting of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science, 1890"); and the Royal Society of Tasmania (RST) was formed in 1843. It was the first Royal Society outside the United Kingdom, and its mission is the advancement of knowledge. The work of the Royal Society of Tasmania includes: Promoting Tasmanian historical, scientific and technological knowledge for the benefit of Tasmanians, Fostering Tasmanian public engagement and participation in the quest for objective knowledge, Recognising excellence in academia and supporting Tasmanian academic excellence, and.
